

SKILLS FOR LIFE, LEARNING AND WORK

What might these skills look like?

- Challenge myself
- Recognise my strengths
- Recognise others' strengths
- Aware of others' needs
- Approach changes with confidence
- Positive attitude
- Motivated to do my best

Health and Wellbeing

- Contribute to discussions
- Identify main ideas of texts
- Confidence in reading and writing
- Apply skills in other areas
- Explain my thinking
- Know when I am being influenced
- Can create texts

Literacy

- Confidence in using numeracy
- Apply skills in other areas
- Explain my thinking
- Interpret data
- Use data to make decisions
- Use numbers
- Use money, time and measurement

Numeracy

- Use ICT to support my learning
- Use responsibly and safely
- Confidence in using technologies
- Positive approach to new technologies
- Use ICT where appropriate

ICT

It is important to note that thinking skills (remembering, understanding, applying, analysing, evaluating and creating) are a thread which run through all aspects of learning, and employability skills embrace the skills listed.

SKILLS FOR LIFE, LEARNING AND WORK

What might these skills look like?

- Have clear goals
- Set high standards
- Take turns
- Delegate to others
- Take different roles
- Contribute ideas
- Accept responsibility

Leadership

- Value and build on others' ideas
- Listen to others
- Compromise when appropriate
- Know and use others' strengths
- Encourage others
- Contribute ideas
- Take responsibility for my role

Working with others

- Identify problems
- Use different strategies
- Find resources to help
- Test and evaluate ideas
- Use result to form next steps

Problem solving

- Creative
- Flexible
- Positive attitude to change
- Use initiative
- Persuade others

Enterprise

It is important to note that thinking skills (remembering, understanding, applying, analysing, evaluating and creating) are a thread which run through all aspects of learning, and employability skills embrace the skills listed.